1234th Monthly Meeting of the PACIFIC COAST NUMISMATIC SOCIETY

The First Two Commercial Medal Series in the U.S.

Daniel Hipple

Wednesday, February 27, 2019, 7:30 PM
Fort Mason Center, Building C, San Francisco

PCNS + PO BOX 475656 + SAN FRANCISCO CA 94147

CIRCLES AND MEDALS AND ART-UNIONS, OH MY!

When asked to identify the first two commercial medal series in the United States, many people will respond Circle of Friends of the Medallion (twelve medals, 1909-1915) and Society of Medallists (129 medals, 1930-1995). But as your editor discovered, they are wrong. The short-lived series by the American Art-Union (1847-49) consisted of only three medals, but actually represents the first commercially-available medal series in the country.

Join us on February 27 at the Fort Mason Center as Dan Hipple discusses these two highly collectible series.

Remember: We're back at Fort Mason, and this meeting begins at 7:30pm.

DAVID LANGE UPDATE

PCNS member and past president David Lange, who last presented at the September, 2017 meeting, has recently been battling cancer. He wanted to let all of us know that he's doing well and is in good spirits, and submitted this picture as evidence. His next goal is teach once again at the ANA Seminar this summer. See you there, David!

JANUARY MEETING RECAP

Due to a family emergency, Federico Castillo had to postpone his presentation, U.S. Token Denominations and their Socioeconomic Context. We look forward to hearing from Federico on this topic in the near future!

Stepping in at the last minute, Michael Wehner gave a presentation on a medal depicting Vincenzo Piccolomini, which he purchased due to the potential link to California. The bronze medal is dated 1836 with the date 1843 in roman numerals on the bust of Count Vincenzo Piccolomini.

Piccolomini was a member of several scientific and academic societies who traveled the world engaged in scientific pursuits. The medal appears to commemorate Piccolomini success as a cartographer of California - what is now the western side of Mexico. There is a beetle named after him in Mexico supporting the theory that Piccolomini traveled there.

Michael continues to research Piccolomini and the medal, and has several unanswered questions including, "Who made the medal?" "Are there any Piccolomini maps in existence?" and "Was Piccolomini truly a Count or was he an impostor?" Stay tuned!

CAL ROGERS

Calvin J. Rogers left us in January at the age of 87. Cal and his wife, Jeanette, lived in Redwood City most of their lives, raising a family there. In the mid 1980s, contemplating retirement from his day-job, he decided to enter the coin market. Around 1987, he began specializing in ancient and medieval coins, and he joined PCNS.

During a decade in the coin business, he issued 27 illustrated price lists to his regular customer base, before deciding on a second retirement in 1997. He remained a member of PCNS for over 30 years, primarily to receive our Papers and The Bulletin so he could keep up with his friends in the Society.

Cal had a collector's interest in Tibetan coins, studied history, and enjoyed numismatics for the camaraderie and lasting friendships rather than the business. We who knew him recall him as an excellent person both in and out of the bourse. Thank you, Cal.
